

McClatchy

NEWS INTERNSHIPS AT MCCLATCHY

With newsrooms in 30 markets, McClatchy is one of America's largest locally focused digital news organizations, reaching 65 million readers each month. Our journalists have won 59 Pulitzer Prizes. Many started their careers as interns in one of our newsrooms.

We offer internships in all 30 newsrooms, which include the Sacramento Bee, Kansas City Star, Charlotte Observer, Raleigh News & Observer, Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Miami Herald.

And our smaller markets -- in places like Tacoma, Fresno, Boise and Wichita, Lexington, Columbia, South Carolina -- focus on accountability journalism in diverse and dynamic communities..

Our internship programs are among the best in the country because we put student journalists on the front lines. Each year, we offer talented collegiate journalists the opportunity to hone their craft working with the country's top professionals. Some details:

- We offer internships in multimedia, data, programming and digital design
- Limited slots also are available in news, business, features and sports reporting, photography/videography and audience development. (All reporting internships presume multimedia work, by the way.)
- Internships last 10 weeks.
- Successful candidates can intern in the summer or fall of the 2024 calendar year.

What we need from you:

- Resume
- A persuasive cover letter. Why should we pick you?
- Three to five samples of your work for writers, artists, designers; 20 images for and five videos from visual journalists. Or any combination of the above.
- The names of three references we can contact and ways to contact them. We do not require letters of recommendation.

If you are interested, please indicate the specific market and send your application to:

Rick Hirsch, Senior Editor for Talent Development
rhirsch@mcclatchy.com